SATURDAY, JULY 17 1863.

THE NORTHERN TRAMWAY.

There can be little doubt that the Northern Railway will double its passenger traffic, especially on Sundays, owing to the new tramway, which invites people residing in the centre of the city, to transport themselves in half an hour to our most favoured suburbs It is, besides, an incalculable benefit to all whose residence or business obliges them to repair to Belgrano or Olivos. The walk to the terminus so as to catch the train, and conveyance by cab so expensive, but the convenience of railway travelling became problematical. At night the evil was more serious, for even strong-minded people felt nervous coming up the Retiro after dark, and one of our friends usually took an escort for protection. Now, as Sterne says, 'Nous avons change tout cela,' and the gouty paterfamilias, or tender damsel, is whirled into the Plaza Mayo, without other fear than running over a stray policeman, or rolling one's shoes in wet weather at the station.

Mr. Zimmerman has had enough of flattery as the last inaugurator. The tramway is yet open to improvement. Every one asks, 'Why not run the locomotive instead of horses?' And indeed we think the Paseo Julio much freer from danger than the Western line through Calle Parque. If, however, there be any professional or nautical objection to steam, there is still no reason why the 'cars' should not serve as omnibuses, either with or without reference to the railway. Instead of the present hourly trains, two twelve or twenty-fair at one paper dollar per head. The buses on the Liverpool line of docks every quarter of an hour, and do a splendid business. Well as Chief Cuzon has set his face against Mr. Hopkins' docks by planting trees on the approaches, it is unwise to wait, until we have a line of docks, for good business and low prices. Any landholder near the Retiro station wishes to call on Dr. Barfield at the Government House, if any city friends want to pay a visit to the 'Five Corners,' if Lt. Col. Conesa has an ultimatum for the Oas Company, there should be an hourly conveyance for them.

Furthermore, the Northern Railway should carry passengers free on the tramway, as at Monk's Bury, Birkenhead, where all persons travelling on the Chester or Manchester lines get a free trip across the Mersey

The Junction, Eighth Avenue, and Fourth Avenue may carry millions of citizens weekly, of whom only a few travel further by rail, the object of tramways in the Kingdom being to do away with the omnibuses, not afford quicker and cheaper transit from one locality to another.

Here it appears, that tramways to Once Setiembre and Barracas, would pay well. The omnibuses to the first place pay regularly, but then the horses get thick, or stick in a quag mire on the road, to the great annoyance of passengers. While the unfortunate drivers in Barracas are compelled, at the mercy of some Basque pusillanime, who know to clope but a tall cargo, tumbling into have rate trips all day, and fall way, and there is enough in their point of departure to see and make up the desired number, by cuffs and kicks. Since the police will not know the abuses to stand in the streets for a minute. Both the late Southern Railway did not require to be carriages, and those that did, were making their line to far out, towns Peonie Alsina. It is, therefore, to be hoped that some enterprising individual will induce people to 'be life on rail' from Plaza Monserrat, down Calle Buen Orden, to Barracas bridge. Our streets, thirteen yards wide, are scarcely narrow, as to prevent the thought of such convenience in the centre of the city, but in the suburbs it would prove both feasible and useful.

ITALIAN OPERA.

On Thursday night the 'Ballo in Maschera was given at Colon; the house resented a fair attendance, about 1,800 persons, with the stalls and the boxes and cazuca exhibiting a large array of female beauty. We remarked an unusual number of Englishmen, and the President and his family honored with their attendance.

Madame Mollo looked charming, and very well as on any former occasion, especially in the duette with Lelmi. The latter was encored in his favourite aria 'Ma come Ei sud the whole of the 'Ballo' was well received. The orchestra and chorus were the same old six and eightpences. But we must congratulate Sig. Badilli, on his new debut in the page: her singing is very good, and but for a little diability on her first appearance would have ensured her great applause. She is not at home in the quartette of the third act, and dressed the page in first-rate style though not possessing the graces of her predecessor Alberi. The chorus, 'Che Baccanal was what the Italians call 'immense made' we have heard it often, but the multitude seemed highly pleased, and called out the prima donna after the second act, when a bouquet was thrown to her.

It would be a mistake to suppose the present company will cause a future but we are not sure that we shall soon but for the confounded Lamas affair we doubt not that the next generation would boast of more Elizabies in the liver of Signor Mary han in Donizetti

Unhappily, however, for the posthumous reputation of Dr Rufino, M. Lamas, the confidential agent of the Oriental Republic has got into a fine trick which is amazing so gifted and clear-sighted a Trojan would not have eluded.

Nothing could be more complete than the vengeance which Sr Lamas has taken upon the gifted Minister. Hector Varela, we believe, likewise compares Dr Elizalde to Lord Palmerston. We consider him more like to Mickey Free, in the story, who, when dressed up in Spanish garments, and assuming the gait and airs of a hidalgo, surprised even his own master.

The following is a translation of the celebrated letter to our Minister. It will be read with interest by all who have an acquaintance with the parties in question.

Buenos Ayres, June 12.

Mr Secretary—

The letter which you were pleased to address me on the 10th inst. I received on the 11th of the same day. At that hour it was impossible for me to catch the steamer for Montevideo

Yesterday it was notorious that, owing to the low tide, no steamer could leave for Montevideo.

These facts prove that the abovementioned note was sent by you to be published in the Nacion Argentina, before I had time to send it to my Government, as I subsequently before, I had time to consider it.

I cannot believe that the preamble to those public documents, as published in the Nacion, and signed by the Government of the Oriental nation, has been sanctioned by your excellency; but as it is not for the public documents are to decide), I cannot forego suggesting to you the following hurried remarks:

In those rules or observations, it says that the following terms have been arranged on in the settlement between the two countries, the establishment of the principle of paying indemnities, and the obligation of returning the arms of the National Government, as a guarantee that I establish no such facts or principles on the contrary, the, and nothing more has been agreed on by the arrangements.

That the liberty of said persons and things, and the recognition of the flags of neutrality, were only and absolutely gratuitous on the part of the Oriental Gove nment, previous to the treaty. It being my duty here to remark, that the surrender of the arms belonging to the Argentine Government, which would appear to have been a subsequent arrangement, is directly offered by the Oriental Government in the politest manner, before even the Argentine Government made a demand on the point.

From the other three points said to have been established, the conclusion is the condemnation of the acts complained

Such conclusions are altogether incorrect, since my Government can well afford to receive the surrender of the arms, since it has been proved to my entire satisfaction the boundless destination for which they were intended after their capture, and since at all proving that the taking of said arms was illegal or improper, and in proof thereof, I refer to the previous that an observation, the arms, the property of the Argentine Government, in which it is admitted by both Governments the legality of the detention of the Salto

It is unlikely, therefore, to suppose that the treaty recognises any condition whatever of the sei ure of said arms.

The claim that is, that the Argentine Government, by the treaty, acknowledges the justice of the acts of the Oriental Government:

We don't see why we should admit what is not the case, since our own view of the matter has been fully acknowledged, and it has been mutually agreed that the Commander of the Villa del Salto, who had detained the arms in question, had done perfectly right, granting always that the circumstances of the case were such as he supposed.

It is asserted as the 6th article of the treaty that the Captain of the Salto shall be suspended in order that he be tried before the proper tribunals.

This is equally incorrect.

In the Protocol it is laid down that still there exists a difference between the two Governments respecting the legality of the detention of the Salto, and consequently upon the conduct of the captain, which the Argentine Government characterises as violent, but which the Montevideon Government believes firmly, under the circumstances, to have been perfectly legal.

In order to arrange this question, which I repeat was the only one existing between the two Governments, we proposed the arbitration of a foreign power, since the Argentine Government would not admit of the decisions of the Oriental tribunals, to which, since my first note, we agreed to submit the question; as also the conduct of the commander of the Villa del Salto, suspending him in the meantime.

The Argentine Government refused absolutely the proposed arbitration, and whilst the diplomatic discussion was proceeding, we had the ultimatum, when the Salto and the persons and things taken thereon were put at liberty, it seizes the Oriental war steamer.

The arrangement of the question having been fully agreed on, the Argentine Government agreed that in the arbitration of the Oriental tribunals, and in order to facilitate the decision of the Oriental Courts, it was agreed that the conduct of the Villa del Salto should be suspended.

As for this reason, and only for this reason, and for this reason purely, that the suspension of the commander has taken place, and all which the Argentine Government admitted was offered from the first day. In my note of the 12th June everything which today constitutes the basis of agreement, was offered, and even more. If just what has been done to the Oriental Government, as has been subsequently affected, those acts which originated the peace of these countries would not have afterwards occurred. The condemnation of the assault made on the Argentine Consulate in Montevideo is not a subject for discussion, nor will we accept of any other signification than that simply contained in the note of the 15 inst.

Although I am fully satisfied of the correctness of these statements—as will all who take the trouble to peruse the official documents published. I will nevertheless send you a copy of the published Argentine Republic.

Few like your Excellency are aware of my untiring exertions and single-mindedness in laboring to unite the two countries, those countries which is for me far superior to the miserable passions, private interests and culpable ambition of others, who are stupidly sacrificing the country and thwarting its destinies instead of consolidating peace on the recognition of the reciprocal rights of both.

For this reason, when I made an effort to avoid a rupture on the 23rd June, I stated to the Argentine Government, I suppose to their existing intention to subject the Oriental flag to humiliation, as, if any such intention existed, it would not be for me to accept—tacitly accepted but without trepidation.

Therefore, now that we have successfully preserved peace, I protest against the signification that the preamble referred to throws upon the documents in question. If the treaty concluded, would admit of such a signification as that which the Nacion Argentina attempts to put on I should never have affixed my name to such a document, and the Oriental government would repudiate it.

The treaty is as both parties have declared, and which, although not

Art. 2. All Export duties shall be paid cash on the first village of importation, being an once cleared for foreign ports, which cannot be transported by water, from one to another point of the Republic unless entered and guaranteed under the forms to be prescribed by the executive.

July 14th, 1863.

Gonsales, Fraguero. B roeni, Villafane, Bustamente.

It is to be earnestly hoped that after a little good reflection, the Patres Conscripti will see the expediency of returning on their steps, and condemn the ridiculous effort to tax raw materials, such as hay and paper, while admitting duty free the manufactured articles, books, &c. We regret that committee has not included iron and lumber in their amendment; but 'half a loaf is better than no bread' and the above project removes the most monstrous portion of an ill digested bill.

THE LAMAS JOKE.

When Dr Rufino Elizalde bought the door upon the Rug ish and French Ministers, and politely told them to be off about their business, and leave Berro and the Blancos to their fate, he strutted up and down his bureau, reflecting on his great popularity which he would acquire when the public read his version of the affair, in the evening paper.

Nor was our Minister very far astray in his calculations. The next day, in the clubs, the bar-rooms, the cafés, and drawing-rooms, Don Rufino was the man of the day. So great was the admiration entertained for the heroic conduct of our Minister, that Elizalde and Rufino were overcome by almost all the rage. Parents testified their satisfaction at his conduct by christening their children Elizaldino and Rufinito, the confounded Lamas affair we doubt not that the next generation would boast of more Elizaldos in the liver of Signor Mary han in Donizetti

Unhappily, however, for the posthumous reputation of Dr Rufino, M. Lamas, the confidential agent of the Oriental Republic has got into a fine trick which is amazing so gifted and clear-sighted a Trojan would not have eluded.

Nothing could be more complete than the vengeance which Sr Lamas has taken upon the gifted Minister. Hector Varela, we believe, likewise compares Dr Elizalde to Lord Palmerston. We consider him more like to Mickey Free, in the story, who, when dressed up in Spanish garments, and assuming the gait and airs of a hidalgo, surprised even his own master.

The following is a translation of the celebrated letter to our Minister. It will be read with interest by all who have an acquaintance with the parties in question.

Buenos Ayres, June 12.

Mr Secretary—

The letter which you were pleased to address me on the 10th inst. I received on the 11th of the same day. At that hour it was impossible for me to catch the steamer for Montevideo

Yesterday it was notorious that, owing to the low tide, no steamer could leave for Montevideo.

These facts prove that the above-mentioned note was sent by you to be published in the Nacion Argentina, before I had time to send it to my Government, as I subsequently before, I had time to consider it.

I cannot believe that the preamble to those public documents, as published in the Nacion, and signed by the Government of the Oriental nation, has been sanctioned by your excellency; but as it is not for the public documents are to decide), I cannot forego suggesting to you the following hurried remarks:

In those rules or observations, it says that the following terms have been arranged on in the settlement between the two countries, the establishment of the principle of paying indemnities, and the obligation of returning the arms of the National Government, as a guarantee that I establish no such facts or principles on the contrary, the, and nothing more has been agreed on by the arrangements.

That the liberty of said persons and things, and the recognition of the flags of neutrality, were only and absolutely gratuitous on the part of the Oriental Gove nment, previous to the treaty. It being my duty here to remark, that the surrender of the arms belonging to the Argentine Government, which would appear to have been a subsequent arrangement, is directly offered by the Oriental Government in the politest manner, before even the Argentine Government made a demand on the point.

From the other three points said to have been established, the conclusion is the condemnation of the acts complained

Such conclusions are altogether incorrect, since my Government can well afford to receive the surrender of the arms, since it has been proved to my entire satisfaction the boundless destination for which they were intended after their capture, and since at all proving that the taking of said arms was illegal or improper, and in

Art. 2. All Export duties shall be paid cash on the first village of importation, being an once cleared for foreign ports, which cannot be transported by water, from one to another point of the Republic unless entered and guaranteed under the forms to be prescribed by the executive.

Gonsales, Fraguero. B roeni, Villafane, Bustamente.

It is to be earnestly hoped that after a little good reflection, the Patres Conscripti will see the expediency of returning on their steps, and condemn the ridiculous effort to tax raw materials, such as hay and paper, while admitting duty free the manufactured articles, books, &c. We regret that committee has not included iron and lumber in their amendment; but 'half a loaf is better than no bread' and the above project removes the most monstrous portion of an ill digested bill.

THE LAMAS JOKE.

When Dr Rufino Elizalde bought the door upon the Rug ish and French Ministers, and politely told them to be off about their business, and leave Berro and the Blancos to their fate, he strutted up and down his bureau, reflecting on his great popularity which he would acquire when the public read his version of the affair, in the evening paper.

Nor was our Minister very far astray in his calculations. The next day, in the clubs, the bar-rooms, the cafés, and drawing-rooms, Don Rufino was the man of the day. So great was the admiration entertained for the heroic conduct of our Minister, that Elizalde and Rufino were overcome by almost all the rage. Parents testified their satisfaction at his conduct by christening their children Elizaldino and Rufinito, the confounded Lamas affair we doubt not that the next generation would boast of more Elizaldos in the liver of Signor Mary han in Donizetti

Unhappily, however, for the posthumous reputation of Dr Rufino, M. Lamas, the confidential agent of the Oriental Republic has got into a fine trick which is amazing so gifted and clear-sighted a Trojan would not have eluded.

Nothing could be more complete than the vengeance which Sr Lamas has taken upon the gifted Minister. Hector Varela, we believe, likewise compares Dr Elizalde to Lord Palmerston. We consider him more like to Mickey Free, in the story, who, when dressed up in Spanish garments, and assuming the gait and airs of a hidalgo, surprised even his own master.

The following is a translation of the celebrated letter to our Minister. It will be read with interest by all who have an acquaintance with the parties in question.

MONTEVIDEO.

The Oriental Government has placed under arrest Major Balcin, commander of the Pulaski, for having surrendered, without a blow, to the Argentine fleet. He is confined in Fort San Jose, pending his trial by court-martial, while his vessel has been confided to the second in command, Benjamin Perez. The Minister of War has given a commission of Ist Lieutenant, on board the Pulaski, to D Manuel Cibils, a youth who studied in Europe, and was lately in the Spanish service.

News from Gualeguychu of Wednesday, reports that some of Flores' forces had been seen close to Fray Bentos, which so alarmed the authorities, that they passed the nights on board small boats, ready to clear out at the shortest notice. The general opinion at Montevideo, that Flores has abandoned the campaign as hopeless, was confirmed. The bilkey from Englishmen recently arrived, that the Government armies do not make the slightest effort to check his movements, but that the campaign is entirely at his disposal, that Medina, Lamas, and the others, can call no place their own, but are very ground they stand upon, and that the sole aim of Lamas is likely to continue until Berro's term of office expires, when a 'coup d'etat' in the capital, or rural movement on the filibusters will decide the question between Blancos and Colorados

On 'Change,

July 17th, 1863.

Ounces opened very heavy this mornings for more than three quarters of an hour, the supporters of the Bolsa no buyers of any description made their appearance, and many people began to think that some of the bulls had backed the hint, and gone a cotton sowing. A multitude of sellers with small bags of ounces made their appearance, and in five minutes time the price fell about half two dollars. The first sale made was at 466, but they tumbled down to 462 before the buyers had time to look around them. The bulk found very weak at this figure sellers. After Bolsa hour we are told they sold still lower, but cannot positively vouch for the truth of this.

The sales on time were of a most gigantic nature; sellers seem glad to catch at any figure, and openly boasted that before another month doubloons would be hardly worth 4.90 dollars.

BRITISH HOSPITAL, CALLE COLON.—Received of Messrs Mulhall the sum of 125 dollars currency, being Mr. Wm. York's contribution to the above institution.

To his Excellency Sr Dn Rufino de Elizalde, secretary of F. A. Argentina Republic.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The drought in the South and West, we are sorry to say, is assuming alarming proportions. Nearly all the farmers are obliged to mind their flocks on foot, as horses there are none A few provident shepherds who sowed maize and alfalfa are all right, but the majority are complaining of the want of grass and water.

The great talk about town is the celebrated Lamas letter, which Mr. L. addressed the Minister in consequence of his indecent hurry in publishing the official documents. This letter has created such a sensation round town that it is thought Mr. Elizalde will at once resign. We have reason, however, to think otherwise, and believe the rumour of the resignation to be without foundation.

A subscriber from Pilar informs us that a few days ago a Frenchman or Italian was drowned in the Pilar River. His name was unknown,

The proposed amendment to the Custom House law would be a great boon, if carried; but it is said that Dr. Velez Sarsfield has a majority in the Senate, and if so, many, therefore, be carried without his consent.

The 'Comercio,' our business collegue, has at last appeared in its new dress. We have no doubt it will please the ache with our best wishes for its success.

The scandalous obscurity which after nightfall prevails in the vicinity of the R ivo has been brought under our notice, and we are requested to 'habler fuerte,' as we are to the high at it may be and bad condition of the streets, it is perfectly impossible to get home on a dark night without sprai ning one's ancle or breaking a leg.

If the drought continues, the people will have to pay dearer for meat in Buenos Ayres than in Europe. In the South districts there is neither fat beef nor mutton, and butcher's are going up to the North.

The Club del Plata Ball to night is the great subject of conversation amongst the young gicls and bachelors. Over 500 are expected to be present at the ball.

The Argentine juveniles are about to establish a cricket club, and, we believe, have made the proposals to a distinguished English cricketer to join them.

Considerable annoyance has been occasioned in the Pelicia owing to the great difficulty which the country encounters in defining the new word 'Concertash'. It is not to be found in Ollendorf nor in the Dictionary. Further is not at present on speaking terms with his worship, or otherwise the question would be solved. The vigilance has been kept up by the police of their gross ignorance, and first-out now the great diificiency in their vocabulary.

Touching the fatality at Browne's Potrero, in Barracas, we are creditably informed that the victim, a Frenchman, instantly commited suicide, having blown his brains out. He was respectably attire l, of medium age, and has been identified

The 'Ferro-carril' narrates a reported outrage by Admiral Penson. It seems he attempted to barter some Bolivian Bonds in the Colony at the Indians of a Chilian colony at Magellan's Straits, and when the Governor arrested the officer for such indiscretion, he threatened to bombard the place, obliging the surrender of his by J. H. Fein.

Mr. Terry's auction of photographic ornaments went off well on Thursday night. We understand this eminent artist purposes giving a Grand Ornamental tableau during at present rather unthriving to pacific people. His successor, Mr. Foss, is no less able in the same line, and intends opening when he visits, and has reduced the former (double) price to a level with other studies.

The amendment in the Customs' Laws saves printing materials and coal: in case the senators pass it, we will advertise for any of them, gratis, for the benefit of our services which they retire into private life, behind a desk or counter.

On Change to-day the sole topic was the probable price of gold next month. As will be seen by the sales a good deal of speculation is going on. Without offering any opinion whatever on the subject, it may be right to remark, that the apparent cause of the sudden fall, is the lowering of interest by the Bank, and the great probability of exchange going up for the next packet. An experienced broker informs us that ounces, although cheaper, are not more plentiful, and that as yet the holders of specie have not appeared as sellers on the Rules; however true these observations may be, we cannot say but ounces closed this evening very weak, and many consider that they will fall seriously before shearing time. The abundance or scarcity of paper money has been proved to have no great effect upon the value of gold. Paper money is getting easier, and the bank step of reducing the rate, is considered a judicious measure

There is every probability that the new Customs law will be altered and in that conl, iron, and lumber, will not be taxed.
